

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE - SECURITY COOPERATION

ARMY

DEPUTY ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE ARMY FOR DEFENSE EXPORTS AND COOPERATION

THE OFFICE OF THE DEPUTY ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE ARMY FOR DEFENSE EXPORTS AND COOPERATION (DASA DE&C) is the Army's lead for security assistance, international armaments cooperation, and export policy. The DASA-DE&C also serves as the Army's representative to a number of bilateral and multi-lateral international armaments cooperation fora.

The DASA-DEC Mission is to engage with our allies and partners, across the spectrum of Army acquisition to strengthen mutual defense capabilities. DASA-DE&C top priorities are to provide tools to allies and partners to safeguard our global community; share information, resources, and expertise to close research, development, and acquisition gaps; foster cohesion and unified effort, continuous improvement, and services to our customers; and strengthen trust of our foreign, industry, and institutional partners.

DASA-DE&C leads the Army Security Assistance Enterprise, which consists of those agencies in the U.S. Army that implement security assistance programs: the U.S. Army Security Assistance Command (including the Security Assistance Training Management Organization), the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Army Medical Research and Materiel Command's Medical Materiel Agency, and the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command's Security Assistance Training Field Activity.

DASA-DE&C represents the Army at joint military conferences, country program reviews, NATO Army Armaments Group Meetings, OSD-sponsored bi/multilateral fora, and Senior National Representative (Army) meetings. International trade shows and exhibitions provide an opportunity to showcase Army systems in strategically important regions to help maintain the industrial base.
